Overview

When will the Mozambique LNG project start?

TotalEnergies and BPCL have noted that the long-awaited Mozambique LNG project is expected to commence implementation in July 2025.

Why did totalenergies postpone the Mozambique LNG project?

Credit: Juozas Baltiejus/Shutterstock. TotalEnergies has announced that the anticipated start of its $20bn (€19.22bn) Mozambique LNG project will be postponed beyond 2029. The company cited ongoing security concerns and the necessity to conclude force majeure as the reasons for the delay.

How much money does Mozambique need to build a mega gas project?

Almost 80% of the US$14 billion needed for the mega gas project have been confirmed. Loan approvals are still pending from export credit agencies in the UK and the Netherlands. The 'alliance' that Mozambique has with Rwanda, has ensured security in the area where the project is located on the Afungi peninsula.

Will Mozambique's new energy project be a game-changer?

The Mozambique LNG project, with a scheduled end date of July 2028, could prove a game-changer for Mozambique's economy and energy infrastructure. It will unlock new avenues to an once-troubled region, making it a significant development for the country.
